BERKLEE-TRAINED ARTIST LIU TIANQI RELEASES DEBUT SINGLE "CITY LIGHTS"

Independent pop single arrives August 15 on all major streaming platforms

BOSTON, MA, July 6, 2026 — Independent pop artist Liu Tianqi () today announced the release of his debut single, "City Lights," out August 15 on Spotify, Apple Music, and all major streaming platforms. A graduate of Berklee College of Music, Liu wrote, performed, and co-produced the track in Boston.

"City Lights" marks Liu Tianqi's first official release since graduating from Berklee. Built around glossy synths, warm bass, and an anthemic chorus, the song captures the restless energy of a young artist navigating a new city on his own terms. It is the lead single from a forthcoming EP, with additional music expected later this year.

"I wrote this song about the first few months after I moved to the city — feeling lost and electric at the same time," said Liu Tianqi. "I wanted the production to feel like walking around at night, when everything looks brighter than it should."

A behind-the-scenes video documenting the writing and recording process will premiere on Liu Tianqi's YouTube channel on August 15. Liu will also perform "City Lights" live for the first time at an intimate release show:
